Kids In Need Foundation Announces Vision for America's Schoolchildren

Foundation begins second decade of providing students tools to succeed

DAYTON, OH – March 14, 2006 – As the SHOPA Kids In Need Foundation enters its second decade of providing school supplies to low-income students, Executive Director Kathy Spencer announces her vision for the foundation in the coming year.

"The SHOPA Kids In Need Foundation begins its eleventh year with a firm commitment to provide school supplies to students who need them and to encourage and affirm innovative teachers who work with our nation's young people. The ongoing goals of the SHOPA Kids In Need Foundation are to insure that no child lacks the basic school supplies necessary for learning and to provide a means of rewarding teachers for bringing creativity and new ideas into the classroom.

"Thirteen million children in the U.S. live below the poverty level. Even more children come from families who are barely making ends meet and are not adequately equipped with the supplies they need to participate fully in their classroom experiences. But these children, like all children, represent the promise of our future – families, workforce, responsible citizens. When children must go to school without the supplies necessary to reinforce learning, those promises are diminished immeasurably.

"This year, as in each year that has passed, we will increase the number of children and teachers in need who are served by the National Network of Resource Centers and Teacher Grants program supported by the Foundation. Through partnerships with corporations, organizations, and individuals that share our dedication to the education of children, we will work to increase our revenue from donations of cash and product, cause-related marketing campaigns, and other opportunities so that the SHOPA Kids In Need Foundation may provide vitally important school supplies to children most in need."
